Less than a month ago, through the ald of her attorney, Mr. W. C. Pulliam, Mrs. Henry C. Baugh obtained a divorce from her husband on the ground of desertion. Lengthy papers were filed he case, and after the facts were resented to the court that tribunal or dered the separation, allowing the wife the custody of the child and permitting her under the law to assume her maiden name. Non-support and desertion were the principal points upon which the plaintiff in the divorce proceeding contended.

The Manchester Pets.

The Manchester Pets, an aggregation of young base-ballists in Manchester with a reputation that many older teams in the State would feel well proud to have, will play the Heroes of Richmond this afternoon on the old Manchester base-ball grounds, near Maury Cemetery. Elkey, the young wizard twirler, will be in the box for the Pets and Stroud will be the backstop. The oldest player on the Manchester team is seventeen years old. The members of the Heroes from Richmond range in age from eighteen to thirty years and are said to be fast players.

Registration Matter.

After June 14th, according to one registrar in the city, all the voters will be allowed to register for the primary. The books will be closed now until after June 14th, and then from that time until the day of the primary, and, in fact, upon the day of the primary, rank, in fact, upon the day of the primary transfers will be issued or parties will be allowed to register. There has been considerable confusion upon this subject and many of the voters are in the dark as to whether they will be allowed to participate in the primary on account of their failure to register when the books were open this meek.

of the night.

Smith Case Continued.

Judge William I. Clopton, of the Manchester Corporation Court, yesterday morning Issued an order continuing the cases of Shepherd K. Smith and his wife, Estelle Smith, until the 27th of June. The continuance is on account of the Illness of Commonwealth's Attorney Charlest I. Page who underwent an ope-Charles L. Page, who underwent an operation y esterday afternoon. The prisoners were brought into court yesterday morning, and were closeted in the judge's room with their attorneys, Messrs. B. H. Wells, of Manchester, and Harry Smith, of Richmond, for more than an hour. They were taken back to jail, the wife to occupy a cell on one side of the building and the huskand a cell on the other ding and the husband a cell on the other side. They never see each other, nor can they carry on a conversation.

Another Fine Residence. Another Fine Residence.

City Engineer Lipscomb yesterday issued a building permit to Mr. B. M. Staples to erect a two and one-half story brick residence building at the corner of Cowardin Avenue and Porter Street. It is estimated that the building will cost about eight thousand dollars, and it will be a great addition to this part of Manchester, which is now one of the most fashionable districts in Manchester. The lot upon which the building will stand is 38 by 75 feet. Mr. Staples has resided in Manchester for many years. He is proprietor of a large baking establishment on upper Hull Street.

Lee Camp Receives Likeness of One of Lee's Great Corps Commanders.

A splendid portrait of General Ambrose P. Hill, one of the corps commanders of the Army of Northern Virginia, was presented to R. E. Lee Camp of Confed-erate Veterans last night with an elo-quent but discriminating tribute to the soldier by one of this command. How presented to R. E. Lee Camp of Contectare reate Veterans last night with an ejaquent but discriminating tribute to the soldier by one of his command, Hon. Richard B. Davis, of Petersburg, and accepted by Rev. John William Jones, D. D. the fighting chaplain, who was so closely associated with Hill and the other groat Confederate commanders. The presentation ceremonies attracted a large gathering to the camp hall, and among them were a delegation from the A. P. Hill Camp, of Petersburg, of which Mr. Davis is an honored member, and which included Commander It. L. Marks and several others. Hon. C. A. Heermans, of Montgomery county, one of the boy soldiers of the Confederacy, was among those who attended the meeting. Dr. James Power Smith, chairman of the camp's portrait committee, introduced Mr. Davis.

Mr. Davis made a careful resume of the principal actions in which Hill figured, from his first service in the war as colonel of the Thirteenth Virginia, to his promotion within a year to a brigaller-generalship, and a few months later to a major-generalship and a few months later to a major-generalship and a Richmond, and finally to his promotion to liquitenant-general after Chancellorsville, and the mortal wounding of Jackson, to whose command he succeeded. President Davis and General R. E. Lee were both quoted, showing their high estimate of Hill, and the coincidence was recalled that both Jackson and Lee, in the delirium immediately preceding death, called the name of Hill. Mr. Davis did not undertake to affirm or deny the fusice of certain criticisms of Hill in attacking on the second day at Gettysburg, but attributed that action to his impetuous daring and his quick judgment of a crucial situation.

A Glorious Death.

In closing, Mr. Davis expressed the belief that Hill's death was a glorious on for him. He said in part:

"Surely we cannot fnd cause for regret at the tragic death of our great commander. He was spared the suffering of conscious defeat that wrung such touching lamnet from the lips of the unhappy Ulysses, and he was granied the boon so vainly sought by the marshal of France on the field of Waterloo.

"He met a soldir's dath at his post, where the conflict was great and before he knew the full measure of the disaster that had overtaken the cause that was dearest to him.

"Did a kind Providence permit this peerless soldier to pass over and jo'n his loved commander on the other side before he had suffered a single defeat in the grand part he played in the struggle?

"So we believe."

Rev. J. William Jones, D. D., was introduced to receive the portrait, and did so in a characteristic speech in the mature of reminiscences of the honored subject. Dr. Jones's speech was of an informal nature, but was marked by the earnestness of his devotion to the cause. He told several interesting stories of Hill and commended especially his modesty and courage.

Colonel William H. Palmer, Hill's adjutant, was present and was called upon by Dr. Smith, who pald a handsome tribute to the soldier-citizen. Colonel Palmer modestly discialmed any pretentions.

Adjutant J. Taylor Stratton read a poem entitled "Tell A. P. Hill," a reproduction of the facile pen of Mr. W. W. Scott. Dr. George Ross then paid a tribute to Hill, with whose corps he was associated as medical director, and told a number of interesting incidents of his career. He stated, among other things, that he owns the cofee-pot from which General Hill drank his last coffee before his death at Five Forks.

REPORT RECEIVED AND READ

Overture From North Carolina Asks Return of Ministerial Relief Office to Richmond.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) FORT WORTH, TEXAS, May 19,-The nnouncement of committees to digest the business before the General Assembly and the reference of communications to these committees took up most of the session at the Broadway Presbyterian Church to-day. The chairmen of the more important committees are as follows: Rev. S. M. Neel, D. D., Committee on Bills and Overtures; Rev. J. R. Lyons, D. D., of the Judicial Committee; Rev. Alexander Sprunt, of the Committee or Foreign Correspondence, and Rev. J. W.

Alexander Sprupt, of the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, and Rev. J. W. Rosebro, D. D., Fredericksburg, Va., of the Committee on the State of Religion in the Churches.

Among the many overtures to the assembly one that excites much interest is from East Hanover Presbytery, introduced into that presbytery by Rev. Cecil Russell, D. D. It looks to some far-reaching changes in the formation of the Church's executive committees and the election of its secretaries.

A North Carolina presbytery overtures the assembly is reconsider the action of the assembly last year, which removed the Committee on Ministerial Relief from Richmond, Va., to Louisville, Ky. It is asked that this important branch of the Church's work be restored to the hands of those in Richmond who formerly had charge of it.

A Texas presbytery overture asks that the Publications Committee at Richmond establish a branch agency at Fort Worth for the convenience of the churches in the far West.

The assembly was affected to-day by the introduction to it of Rev. Angus Johnson, D. D., now in his minety-state year, and in his seventieth year of preaching. This venerable man and his wifewer given seats upon the platform, after he had bestowed his blessing upon the assembly.

Question of Union.

Question of Union.

The question of uniting the Reformed and Presbyterlan Churches still remains a matter of speculation.

Just before the closs of to-day's session, the report of the committee on closer relations was read and circulated in printed form on the floor of the convention. The report recommended the appointment of a committee to confer with similar committees of other churches as to the most advisable course to pursue in the premises. On motion of Rev. Dr. G. B. Strickler, of Richmond, Va., the report of the committee was ordered to be referred to a committee of thirteen to be appointed by Moderator Plunkett. This committee will report back to the assembly its recommendation on the question.

In speaking of the proposed federation several of the older members of the assembly expressed themselves as decidedly opposed to union. Some refuse to give their reasons, but say that they will do so when the proper time domes. It is generally believed that there is little likelihood of steps looking to a union of the two churches being taken by this assembly. It is probable, however, that the question of closer relationship with the Northern Church will so doe, it is thought that it may lead to a final union.

The opinion of a great many is that the report will not be accepted in its entirety, and that some changes will be made.

report will not be accepted in its entire-ty, and that some changes will be made. None of the commissioners here will talk regarding the matter, preferring to wait until the question is brought before the assembly.

The prediction is that many spirited debates will be heard on the question. No date has been set for the hearing.

The reports of the Executive Committee on ministerial relief and colored evange-lization were read.
